

THE STANLEY CUP

Success Rate	90%
Attracts	sporty chicks but not sports fan chicks
Requirements	tin foil, Sharpie
Prep Time	forty-five minutes
Bummers	too much arts and crafts for some

THE PLAY

1. Glue or tape a punch bowl to the top of a coffeemaker or lamp. If it's roughly the shape of a chess pawn or a bloated toilet plunger, you're good to go.
2. Cover your sculpture in tin foil. You are now in possession of the Stanley Cup.
3. Use the Sharpie to blacken out a few teeth—just like you'd do if there were a play called The Bumpkin (which probably wouldn't be very successful . . . unless you'd just discovered oil).
4. Carry your trophy into a bar and wait for the ladies to swoon.

WHY DOES THIS WORK?

- All ladies like professional athletes because they are wealthy and in shape but none can tell you what a championship trophy looks like—at least none you want to get with.
- Each member of the champion team gets to possess the Stanley Cup for one day. When you explain this to your target, she will feel even more special that you've chosen to spend time with plain old her.

- Because women are legally required to see the movie The Cutting Edge, every chick is hardwired to think she can turn a tough-guy hockey player into her ice-dancing partner. You now represent the ultimate project.